

Dr. Sabine D. Saintable, DNP, APRN, AGACNP-BC, CCRN was born and raised in Miami, FL. She is an advanced practice nurse, nurse leader, educator, mentor, and entrepreneur. She has been immersed in the healthcare field for approximately 20 years. Dr. Saintable obtained her bachelor of science in nursing from Florida International University in 2003 and later went on to pursue her dual masters and doctorate degrees in nursing practice from Barry University in 2013.

Dr. Saintable has practiced in various capacities as a nurse and specialized in multiple specialties, including critical care, neurological surgery, pre/post anesthesia, trauma, internal medicine, and oncology. She has practiced most of her career at Jackson Memorial Hospital and later joined the Baptist family at Doctors Hospital and Miami Cancer Institute. She is involved in many professional organizations including Haitian American Nurses Association and Nurse Empowerment. Dr. Saintable believes in serving and giving back to her community, both local and global communities through healthcare education and medical missions. She serves as a mentor to the youth population in the community, as well as to colleagues within the nursing profession. She regularly educates her community about various health topics in order to promote a healthy community.

Dr. Saintable values education, community empowerment, and clinical excellence. She is passionate about educating, mentoring, empowering, and guiding others to reach their maximum potential. She believes that quality education to healthcare providers will result in valued and empowered professionals, which in turn will yield a quality healthcare system and better access to healthcare within our community. She is currently an adjunct clinical professor at St. Thomas University.